Weaver Continues Expansion of Health Care Practice with the Addition of Adam Klein, Managing Director

HOUSTON, TEXAS (December 14, 2021) –Weaver, the 35th largest public accounting and advisory firm in the United States, has added Adam Klein as a Managing Director in its rapidly growing health care advisory services practice. With more than two decades of experience, Klein has worked with not-for-profit and academic medical centers, as well as physician organizations and health care investors with a focus on transactions and arrangements between physicians and hospital community health systems.

“Adam’s skill in valuation of physician compensation and his deep understanding of the regulatory compliance between health systems and providers is a clear complement to our growing practice in this area,” said Curt Germany, Weaver’s Partner-in-Charge of Valuation Services. “In this complex and ever-changing industry, our clients depend on us to provide this level of knowledge.”

Klein has worked across multiple clinical service lines to provide insight and advisory services regarding health care provider strategies, transactions, system design and financial and operational performance improvement. Additionally, he has led comprehensive reviews of physician compensation programs to improve performance, both operationally and financially.

Based in the firm’s Dallas office, Klein is a frequent writer and presenter within the health care industry and has presented at more than 50 related industry conferences on topics most impacting health care systems and providers in today’s changing market. He earned his MBA from UCLA's Anderson School of Management and a bachelor's in econometrics from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. Klein also served as a helicopter pilot with the U.S. Army during the first Gulf War.
