Weaver Continues New York City Expansion with Addition of Partner Matthew DiBrienza, CPA

National accounting firm Weaver, one of the 40 largest Certified Public Accounting firms in the United States, announced today that it is continuing to expand its financial services industry practice with the addition of Matthew DiBrienza, CPA, as an audit partner in the New York office.

DiBrienza, who was previously an audit partner for KPMG and a principal of Rothstein Kass, offers Weaver's investment fund clients more than 20 years of experience serving the alternative investment industry. He offers the full range of services to his clients, which have included hedge funds, private equity funds, fund-of-funds and commodity pools.

In addition to financial audits, DiBrienza provides tax planning and organizational structure advice; he also reviews investment partnership agreements for structure, accounting and tax-related compliance. Matthew works with companies using various types of strategies and investments, such as listed equities, various types of debt, derivative contracts, commodities and private investments — both debt and equity — in companies at all stages of growth.

“With our Midtown Manhattan office and our financial services practice both growing rapidly, Matthew's experience and industry understanding are very valuable to Weaver and our clients,” said John Mackel, CPA, who is CEO and managing partner of the firm. “He brings a rare combination of both audit and tax knowledge, which will help him advise alternative investment firms about a wide range of issues from partnership structures to the tax implications of new financial reporting requirements.”

DiBrienza is a CPA licensed in New York and New Jersey. He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in accounting from the University of Scranton and is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants.
